
All You Need is Cash

The Beatles split up in 1970, after eight very successful years together. But their popularity and influence did not decline. In 1978, a television film called All You Need is Cash was released. This “mocumentary” (written and directed by Eric Idle, of Monty Python fame) traces the career of a fictitious group called the Rutles. The music and events closely parody the career of the Beatles.
