Do You Write in Your Books?

The rise of e-books means the decline of marginalia – readers’ written commentary in the margins of their books – much to the dismay of many book lovers, librarians and historians. Do you write in your books? Do you enjoy reading what others have written in the margins of old books?

Tell us what you think about writing in books.

Do you write notes in the texts you read for school?

Do you write notes when you read for fun? Why or why not?

Have you ever come across a book with notes written in the margins by someone else, like a family member?

Did they add to or detract from your reading experience? How do you think digital notes in ebooks compare with marginalia in print books?
