

Your task : As a student of the Graduate School of Journalism at Columbia University, you have undertaken a work placement at PBS. You participate in a work meeting with Fred De Sam Lazaro, your mentor, to prepare a last documentary, 'South Africa: the Young Democracy Takes Stock', which is going to be part of a series dedicated to Africa entitled 'Hopes on the Horizon - 20 years later'.

As you may see it here: Soccer's World Cup Fever Highlights South Africa's Pride, Problems (http://www.pbs.org/newshour/bb/sports/jan-june10/worldcup1_06-10.html), journalists can actually reuse their different reportages to build another one !

Watch the pictures, listen carefully to the commentary: don't you recognize some places, some people, some figures, some statements?

Prepare your third film then! Both of you are going to

- take stock of the two reportages that have already been broadcast on PBS
- then make choices : which pictures, interviews and comments are you going to keep?
- finally be ready to edit your last project !

YOUR SKILLS - To appraise the quality of your work each of you needs to:

- summarize briefly what his/her own reportage deals with
- answer his/her partner's questions
- have a critical point of view and be ready to point to the assets or weaknesses of each video
- make a proposal for a short reportage to complete your project.

Eventually, conclude your meeting with an agreement on that third project ... or postpone the final decision.

HELP: You can suggest one place where you could shoot more interviews ; explain what type of information you would look for and with what specific objectives.

Which of the following places would you choose or not to shoot more interviews and report how interracial relationships are fostered?
